JOURNAL OF THE HISTORY OF DENTISTRY

Official Publication of the American Academy of the History of Dentistry www.historyofdentistry.org

Correspondence

The Journal of the History of Dentistry (JHD) is the official publication of the American Academy of the History of Dentistry (AAHD). Address all communications to:

Anders K. Gustafsson
Editor
Journal of the History of Dentistry
244 Harbor St.
Brookline, MA 02445
Email: achriste@iupui.edu

SUBMISSIONS AND OTHER BUSINESS MATTERS

Active and honorary members of the American Academy of the History of Dentistry receive the Journal as a consequence of their membership. Annual membership fees are: domestic $65, international $115. All correspondence pertaining to subscriptions, rates, and servicing of existing subscriptions should be addressed to:

Dr. David A. Chernin
Corday Corner Theatre Building,
284 Harvard Street, Brookline, MA 02446
Journal@histden.org

SUBMISSIONS AND OTHER BUSINESS MATTERS

Active and honorary members of the American Academy of the History of Dentistry receive the Journal as a consequence of their membership. Annual membership fees are: domestic $65, international $115. All correspondence pertaining to subscriptions, rates, and servicing of existing subscriptions should be addressed to:

Dr. David A. Chernin
Corday Corner Theatre Building,
284 Harvard Street, Brookline, MA 02446
Journal@histden.org

American Academy of the History of Dentistry

The American Academy of the History of Dentistry, a not-for-profit organization founded in 1951, has as its goals the following:

• Increasing interest among dentists in dental history.

• Encouraging dental schools to develop historical collections on dentistry, and to offer adequate instruction in dental history.

• Developing a broader understanding of the facts of dental history among the leaders in dentistry in order to aid them in their attempts to solve important problems in dental education and practice.

• Stimulating more thorough and comprehensive research in dental history, thereby extending the boundaries of dental knowledge, giving substantial support to growing professional culture.

• Creating an authoritative body to which important questions relating to dental history could be referred for factual verification.

American Academy of the History of Dentistry

The American Academy of the History of Dentistry, a not-for-profit organization founded in 1951, has as its goals the following:

• Increasing interest among dentists in dental history.

• Encouraging dental schools to develop historical collections on dentistry, and to offer adequate instruction in dental history.

• Developing a broader understanding of the facts of dental history among the leaders in dentistry in order to aid them in their attempts to solve important problems in dental education and practice.

• Stimulating more thorough and comprehensive research in dental history, thereby extending the boundaries of dental knowledge, giving substantial support to growing professional culture.

• Creating an authoritative body to which important questions relating to dental history could be referred for factual verification.

American Academy of the History of Dentistry

The American Academy of the History of Dentistry, a not-for-profit organization founded in 1951, has as its goals the following:

• Increasing interest among dentists in dental history.

• Encouraging dental schools to develop historical collections on dentistry, and to offer adequate instruction in dental history.

• Developing a broader understanding of the facts of dental history among the leaders in dentistry in order to aid them in their attempts to solve important problems in dental education and practice.

• Stimulating more thorough and comprehensive research in dental history, thereby extending the boundaries of dental knowledge, giving substantial support to growing professional culture.

• Creating an authoritative body to which important questions relating to dental history could be referred for factual verification.

American Academy of the History of Dentistry

The American Academy of the History of Dentistry, a not-for-profit organization founded in 1951, has as its goals the following:

• Increasing interest among dentists in dental history.

• Encouraging dental schools to develop historical collections on dentistry, and to offer adequate instruction in dental history.

• Developing a broader understanding of the facts of dental history among the leaders in dentistry in order to aid them in their attempts to solve important problems in dental education and practice.

• Stimulating more thorough and comprehensive research in dental history, thereby extending the boundaries of dental knowledge, giving substantial support to growing professional culture.

• Creating an authoritative body to which important questions relating to dental history could be referred for factual verification.

American Academy of the History of Dentistry

The American Academy of the History of Dentistry, a not-for-profit organization founded in 1951, has as its goals the following:

• Increasing interest among dentists in dental history.

• Encouraging dental schools to develop historical collections on dentistry, and to offer adequate instruction in dental history.

• Developing a broader understanding of the facts of dental history among the leaders in dentistry in order to aid them in their attempts to solve important problems in dental education and practice.

• Stimulating more thorough and comprehensive research in dental history, thereby extending the boundaries of dental knowledge, giving substantial support to growing professional culture.

• Creating an authoritative body to which important questions relating to dental history could be referred for factual verification.

American Academy of the History of Dentistry

The American Academy of the History of Dentistry, a not-for-profit organization founded in 1951, has as its goals the following:

• Increasing interest among dentists in dental history.

• Encouraging dental schools to develop historical collections on dentistry, and to offer adequate instruction in dental history.

• Developing a broader understanding of the facts of dental history among the leaders in dentistry in order to aid them in their attempts to solve important problems in dental education and practice.

• Stimulating more thorough and comprehensive research in dental history, thereby extending the boundaries of dental knowledge, giving substantial support to growing professional culture.

• Creating an authoritative body to which important questions relating to dental history could be referred for factual verification.

American Academy of the History of Dentistry

The American Academy of the History of Dentistry, a not-for-profit organization founded in 1951, has as its goals the following:

• Increasing interest among dentists in dental history.

• Encouraging dental schools to develop historical collections on dentistry, and to offer adequate instruction in dental history.

• Developing a broader understanding of the facts of dental history among the leaders in dentistry in order to aid them in their attempts to solve important problems in dental education and practice.

• Stimulating more thorough and comprehensive research in dental history, thereby extending the boundaries of dental knowledge, giving substantial support to growing professional culture.

• Creating an authoritative body to which important questions relating to dental history could be referred for factual verification.

American Academy of the History of Dentistry

The American Academy of the History of Dentistry, a not-for-profit organization founded in 1951, has as its goals the following:

• Increasing interest among dentists in dental history.

• Encouraging dental schools to develop historical collections on dentistry, and to offer adequate instruction in dental history.

• Developing a broader understanding of the facts of dental history among the leaders in dentistry in order to aid them in their attempts to solve important problems in dental education and practice.

• Stimulating more thorough and comprehensive research in dental history, thereby extending the boundaries of dental knowledge, giving substantial support to growing professional culture.

• Creating an authoritative body to which important questions relating to dental history could be referred for factual verification.

American Academy of the History of Dentistry

The American Academy of the History of Dentistry, a not-for-profit organization founded in 1951, has as its goals the following:

• Increasing interest among dentists in dental history.

• Encouraging dental schools to develop historical collections on dentistry, and to offer adequate instruction in dental history.

• Developing a broader understanding of the facts of dental history among the leaders in dentistry in order to aid them in their attempts to solve important problems in dental education and practice.

• Stimulating more thorough and comprehensive research in dental history, thereby extending the boundaries of dental knowledge, giving substantial support to growing professional culture.

• Creating an authoritative body to which important questions relating to dental history could be referred for factual verification.

American Academy of the History of Dentistry

The American Academy of the History of Dentistry, a not-for-profit organization founded in 1951, has as its goals the following:

• Increasing interest among dentists in dental history.

• Encouraging dental schools to develop historical collections on dentistry, and to offer adequate instruction in dental history.

• Developing a broader understanding of the facts of dental history among the leaders in dentistry in order to aid them in their attempts to solve important problems in dental education and practice.

• Stimulating more thorough and comprehensive research in dental history, thereby extending the boundaries of dental knowledge, giving substantial support to growing professional culture.

• Creating an authoritative body to which important questions relating to dental history could be referred for factual verification.

American Academy of the History of Dentistry

The American Academy of the History of Dentistry, a not-for-profit organization founded in 1951, has as its goals the following:

• Increasing interest among dentists in dental history.

• Encouraging dental schools to develop historical collections on dentistry, and to offer adequate instruction in dental history.

• Developing a broader understanding of the facts of dental history among the leaders in dentistry in order to aid them in their attempts to solve important problems in dental education and practice.

• Stimulating more thorough and comprehensive research in dental history, thereby extending the boundaries of dental knowledge, giving substantial support to growing professional culture.

• Creating an authoritative body to which important questions relating to dental history could be referred for factual verification.

American Academy of the History of Dentistry

The American Academy of the History of Dentistry, a not-for-profit organization founded in 1951, has as its goals the following:

• Increasing interest among dentists in dental history.

• Encouraging dental schools to develop historical collections on dentistry, and to offer adequate instruction in dental history.

• Developing a broader understanding of the facts of dental history among the leaders in dentistry in order to aid them in their attempts to solve important problems in dental education and practice.

• Stimulating more thorough and comprehensive research in dental history, thereby extending the boundaries of dental knowledge, giving substantial support to growing professional culture.

• Creating an authoritative body to which important questions relating to dental history could be referred for factual verification.

American Academy of the History of Dentistry

The American Academy of the History of Dentistry, a not-for-profit organization founded in 1951, has as its goals the following:

• Increasing interest among dentists in dental history.

• Encouraging dental schools to develop historical collections on dentistry, and to offer adequate instruction in dental history.

• Developing a broader understanding of the facts of dental history among the leaders in dentistry in order to aid them in their attempts to solve important problems in dental education and practice.

• Stimulating more thorough and comprehensive research in dental history, thereby extending the boundaries of dental knowledge, giving substantial support to growing professional culture.

• Creating an authoritative body to which important questions relating to dental history could be referred for factual verification.

American Academy of the History of Dentistry

The American Academy of the History of Dentistry, a not-for-profit organization founded in 1951, has as its goals the following:

• Increasing interest among dentists in dental history.

• Encouraging dental schools to develop historical collections on dentistry, and to offer adequate instruction in dental history.

• Developing a broader understanding of the facts of dental history among the leaders in dentistry in order to aid them in their attempts to solve important problems in dental education and practice.

• Stimulating more thorough and comprehensive research in dental history, thereby extending the boundaries of dental knowledge, giving substantial support to growing professional culture.

• Creating an authoritative body to which important questions relating to dental history could be referred for factual verification.

American Academy of the History of Dentistry

The American Academy of the History of Dentistry, a not-for-profit organization founded in 1951, has as its goals the following:

• Increasing interest among dentists in dental history.

• Encouraging dental schools to develop historical collections on dentistry, and to offer adequate instruction in dental history.

• Developing a broader understanding of the facts of dental history among the leaders in dentistry in order to aid them in their attempts to solve important problems in dental education and practice.

• Stimulating more thorough and comprehensive research in dental history, thereby extending the boundaries of dental knowledge, giving substantial support to growing professional culture.

• Creating an authoritative body to which important questions relating to dental history could be referred for factual verification.